Job worked at Grazebrooks in the engine house in Cinderbank opp Hulberts where the old Herman Smith plant was, William also worked there, employed more on the colliery/stoking side, down Pear Tree Lane, this didn't help his asthma.

Elizabeth used to run the betting office in St Andrews Street, she previously took the bets at home.

Job was the father of an illegitimate child named Phillis, born in Wales, he used to contribute 5 shillings a week for her upkeep .

The Garratts and Portmans used to be near neighbours living in the fold at the back of Little's shoe factory.
